a) The French philosopher Rousseau gave this statement in his famous book 'Social Contract'. In this book, he discussed about the inequality, popular sovereignty, natural laws etc.

According to Rousseau (Pamphlet - Discourse on Inequality) discussed two types of inequality i.e. natural inequality and artificial inequality. Former is a functional and it will not causes any exploitation of masses but in latter exploitation happened due to possession of material by few section of society and other becomes slave of them.

He also discussed about the popular sovereignty → As the population increased, the work of community increased. So community elected one person as a king to manage.

Remarks

the work of community and for its welfare. Authority of king's power is common people, so if king becomes exploitable, then people have right to overthrow him.

He was more emphasised on an emotional appeal rather than logics and reasons because educated class in society was very few. According to him, community must go back to earlier period and close to nature, where equality prevailed. He wanted shatter the bondage of exploitation and become free.

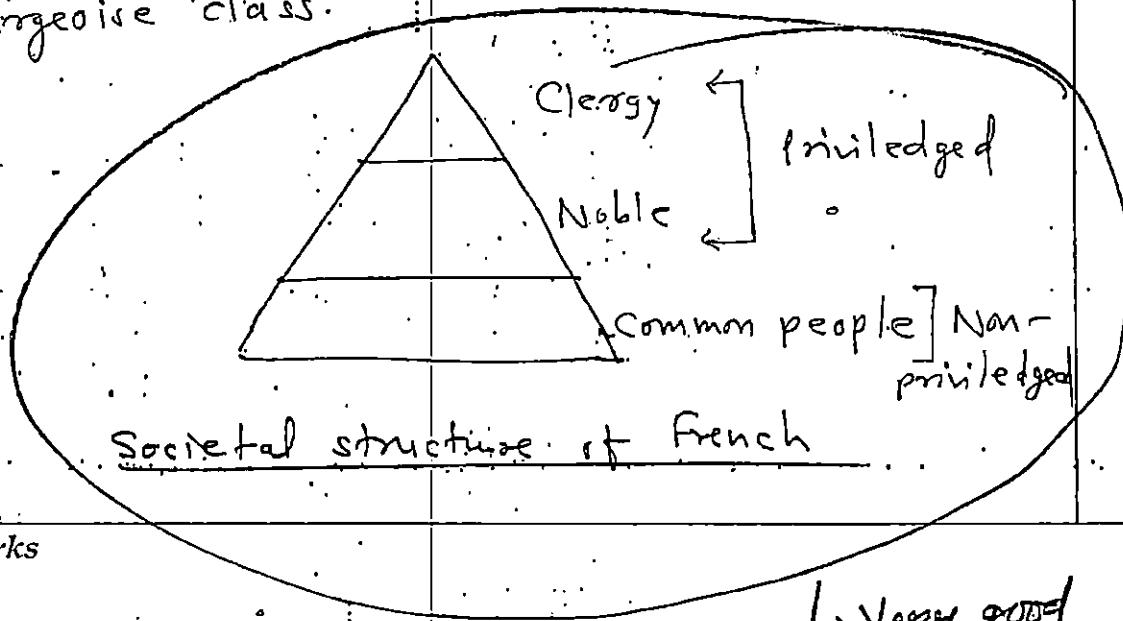

Rousseau's philosophy inspired the Frenchmen and people of other country also to rise against the exploitative rule and demand natural rights.

Remarks

French revolution of 1789 was one of the significant event in the history of mankind. Different political-socio-economic reasons were there, which compelled Frenchmen to rise against autocratic rule.

The main reason behind the French revolution was inherent in societal structure. French society was divided into two types, i.e. privileged one and non-privileged class. Three classes of Estate General - Clergy, noble and common people. The 1st two classes came under privileged section and common people under non-privileged one. These third class also included ~~poor~~ middle bourgeoisie class.

Remarks

↳ Very good

Privileged class of the society didn't had any responsibility and they were also immune from the taxation. Earlier they had the responsibility, but after more centralisation under Louis -XIII and Louis XIV, these responsibility was removed.

This privileged class also enjoyed many benefits from the state and they were living luxurious life. They also dominated the state affairs and had strong control over a king Louis -XVI of France. This combination of king and privileged class had exploited the common people.

On the other hand, non-privileged class had all the responsibility and burden of taxes. Middle bourgeoisie class was strated emerging from this section. These class strated increasingly discontented from suling class. This dissent gave rise to revolutionary fervour among the masses, and they rose against the autocratic rule.

Remarks

However, along with societal structure other factors like weak economic structure, bankruptcy condition, participation in American war of independence, feudal-autocratic rule, inspiration from philosophical ideas, were also responsible for french revolution.

The combination of evil political-socio-economic resulted into overthrowing of autocratic regime and spread of modern ideas like liberty, fraternity into French society.

Remarks

(c) ⑥ Industrial revolution commenced first in England around 1760's and later on it spread to the continental European countries like Belgium, France, etc.

There was some fundamental difference between the England's industrial revolution and other continental industrial revolution. In England - Early 18th century had witnessed the agricultural revolution and rise of a capitalist class, which had surplus money at their disposal. These capitalist class had invested in industrial sector around mid-18th century, which gave rise to industrial revolution.

However, in continental Europe, structure of society was largely feudal-medieval order. Traditional agriculture was practised in this countries. Due to its subsistence nature the accumulation of surplus was not happened. In the absence of capitalist class, the industrial revolution does not commence.

Remarks

So in order to overcome the shortage of capital, various banks were established in continental Europe by different countries. For example - Napoleon established Bank of France in year 1808, which helped to distribute loan to entrepreneur class and resulted into industrial revolution of French around 1810. Similar was the case with other countries like Belgium, Germany etc.

Banks provided the important capital to entrepreneurs in continental Europe and upto end of 19th century we have seen rise of many industrial powers.

a) League of Nation was established after the end of 1st world war in order to avoid future wars and to establish peace and order in the world.

The President of America, Wilson was the main motivation behind the formation of League of nation. He gave 14 points during war period like self-determination, peaceful resolution of disputes etc. On the basis of these 14 points, League of Nation established.

Prior to formation of League, the world was entangled into repeated wars. The rise of nation-states in late 19th century, colonial rivalry, aggressive nationalism militarism and arm races resulted into frequent war between different countries.

for example - Moroccan crisis, Balkan wars and the great 1st world war was the expression of the same.

These wars had caused many socio-economic-political problems in the world.

The peace and order of the world was at its lowest ebb. So the need felt to establish one global organisation, which can establish peace in coming future.

League was established with good intention, but it failed to fulfill its goal and world witnessed another world war after 20 years of its formation.

Paris Peace treaty in 1919 was intended to restore global peace and to punish the losing powers, so that in future we would not see any world war.

3)

Remarks

Under the Paris treaty, various sub-treaties with loosing power had been signed.

For example - Treaty of ~~Saint Germain~~^{Versailles} with Germany.

According to this treaties, various areas were taken out from loosing powers and it distributed among winning powers and other became independent. eg - ~~Belgium~~ Holland got independence.

The huge war indemnity was also imposed on loosing power. eg - 6600 million was imposed on Germany. Loosing power were not treated with respect and equality. This caused huge humiliation of loosing power. The intention behind this treaty was to avoid future wars and establish peace.

However, this humiliation and burden of indemnity resulted into dissent in common masses of loosing countries. They started building their military power. The aggressive nationalism was rise in Germany, Italy, Japan etc. countries and there was rise of fascist government.

Marshall plan was introduced by the America in aftermath of 2nd world war. According to this plan, huge loan was provided to European countries for reconstruction.

The European powers were devasted after the 2nd world war. There was complete exhaustion of military and economic power. Large scale destruction in Europe needed economic support, so Marshall plan helped these countries to recover.

This was the bold step initiated by the America. The closer examination of this may reveals various factors that compel America to announce Marshall plan.

There was change in global balance of power. Rise of US and USSR as a superpower.

Remarks

- Communism was becoming popular all over the world and many European countries started tilting towards communist ideology, e.g. - civil war in Egypt, China, Vietnam were the expression of same.
- Communism was the great threat to capitalist countries led by America.
- Other capitalist countries like Britain, France also exhausted due to World war so there was need to reconstruct these countries and make capitalist countries strong.
- Newly independent countries in Europe should not fall in trap of USSR.
- All these factors resulted into announcement of Marshall plan by America, which was bold and imaginative to mainly contain communism.

Non-aligned movement was established in 1961 by the newly independent countries of Asia and Africa in Belgrade conference. The Prime Minister of India Jawaharlal Nehru was also one leader behind formation of NAM.

NAM was introduced in order to establish global peace and to keep newly independent countries i.e. Third-world out of the cold-war scenario. To pursue independent foreign policy and to maintain sovereignty and integrity of nation were also other factor behind it's formation.

But some critics of this NAM movement were argued that, this movement failed to achieve desired goals. Many countries of NAM had participated directly or indirectly into cold-war. For example, during cold-war India was more tilted towards the USSR. It also took help from USSR during 1971 war. Other countries like Africa and Eastern Europe were involved in the cold-war.

However, we should look into broader perspective. NAM had largely been successful in keeping itself away from cold-war, in fact it actively participated to reduce cold-war. It also helped in maintaining peace it was involved in various independence movements of African nations.

Currently, it has member around 120 countries, which represent around 55% of global population. The relevance of NAM is still present to cooperate in various fields like global peace, climate change, poverty etc.

(Q) [3/2] - Outbreak of 1st world war helped in many ways to Japan to realise opportunity in far-East for its imperial ambitions.

During the first world war Japan came to know the strengths and weaknesses of European powers in far East region. By the time of 1st world war Japan was emerged as new global power due to development of military infrastructure, industries etc. Japan came to know about the imperial ambitions of European powers in region particularly China.

Japan also participated in the peace talk of Paris but failed to fulfill its demand. Japan wanted stakes in China. Japan got antagonised after the peace talk and started preparing its imperial design in far east region. The attack of Japan on Manchuria in year 1931 was the expression of same imperial design.

The weaknesses and strength of European power in far-East region during 1st world war was successfully exploited by Japan and it overran the South-East Asia during initial period of 2nd world war.

a] Q6/2 The Wall Street crash of 1929 in America resulted into phase of depression in global economy. However, this was only the last event of process which was started from long time.

* Post 1st world war scenario - After the end of 1st world war, there was large scale economic exhaustion of European countries. Aftermath of war, America had emerged as a global power. America had huge resources at that time, so it extended loans to many European powers.

* Rise of Protectionist policies -

Upto 1st world war, many industrial countries had emerged. There was surplus production in every country and so they started following protectionist policy to safeguard domestic industries.

Remarks

War indemnity of losing power

Huge war indemnity was imposed on losing power of 1st world war and their resource-rich area was taken away. In this scenario, they had to take loan in order to fulfill obligation of Paris treaty. e.g. America extended loan to Germany.

Inflation and Unemployment — Inflation was at its high peak and many currencies loose its value. Many youth became unemployed due to end of world war and no work remains.

Bank advanced loan without collateral — In order to recover economy, bank of various countries started advancing huge loan without any security guarantees, so there were huge defaulter of loan due to lack of demand in market.

All these factors resulted into great depression of 1929 and fall of wall of street was only the symbolisation of depression.

(B) Aftermath of 2nd world war, the leading countries of the world gathered and prepared the United Nation Charter in order to establish peace and order in the world.

Earlier League of Nation had failed to fulfill its goal and which caused great devastation in the form of 2nd world war. Experience of league and need of global organisation, which can keep stability and peace in world, this quest of nations resulted into adoption of United Nation Charter.

UNO is responsible for peace and order in the world. It is the largest political forum in the world. It not only the political organisation but also work in socio-economic field also. UNO has six organ - security council, secretariat, International court of Justice, general assembly, Socio-economic council and trusteeship council, through which it carry out its function.

Remarks

However, this organisation is full of ~~weaknesses~~

- Lack of democratic character of Security council - Only 5 nations, no representation to emerging power like India, Brazil etc., no African representation.
- Misuse of veto power by Security council nation for their vested interest.
- It failed in many ways to control the wars - eg - Arab wars, West-Asia conflicts, Cold-war etc.
- Lack of resources at its disposal: eg - Resource should be given by developed countries, but they are ~~so reluctant~~.
- No permanent Army.
- Only sanction method, not deter countries to violate the principles of Charter.

Although, there are many weaknesses of UNO but it also succeed on many occasions. It has solved global problems peacefully. It has also achieve success in socio-economic field by adopting various ~~resolution~~ like sustainable Development Goal, UNESCO etc.

Formation of UNO was the boldest experiment to establish peace and stability in the world. There are weaknesses in charter, but reformation of same can strengthen UNO to deal with global challenges.

Cold war which was started after the end of 2nd world war, but it's origin can be traced back to Bolshevik Revolution of Russia in year 1917.

Cold war was the ideological war between capitalist led by the US and communist world led by the USSR. After the end of 2nd world war, balance of power in globe had been changed and US and USSR were rose as a superpower. The difference between the ideologies of two countries and their efforts to increase and promote their ideologies in the world resulted into cold-war.

However, the process of this cold-war was strated much earlier in year 1917. The Russia became the first communist country in the world after the revolution. Communism as a ideology had got it's practical form after the successful Bolshevik revolution.

Remarks

This ideas of communism started spreading in world after year 1917, which were threat to the capitalist world. The capitalist world involved into various struggle to curb the spread of communism. For example - Civil war in Russia 1918 - 1921 was the expression of same. Capitalist supported the anti-revolutionary force against the communist.

Civil war in Spain between communist and military led by Franco was also expression of same. Capitalist countries supported many European countries to fight against communist forces in the country even before the 2nd world war. Policy of appeasement towards Italy and Germany was also to suppress communist forces in Europe.

Though the cold war a term coined after the end of 2nd world war, but it was started much earlier in year 1917.

Q) 6 1/2

In a modern world history, the rivalry between Germany and France was continued phenomenon and France was the eternal and mortal enemy of Germany.

We can distinguish rivalry between France and Germany in following phases—

I Napoleon war and conquest of Germany

Napoleon the Emperor of France overran whole of Germany. He exploited the rich resources of the Germany for the benefit of industries in France. German nationalism started due to rule of Napoleon in the Germany.

II Unification of Germany and France hurdle

The measure hurdle in the path of unification of Germany was France. Germany had to fight hard with France initially.

Remarks

Battle of Sedan: After the battle, Germany had imposed huge burden of France for war indemnity and area of Lorraine and other taken away from France, which felt humiliated and started preparing for revenge.

III Alliances - Counter Alliances and 1st world war -

Alliances of Germany with Italy and Austria, Russia and counter-alliances of France with Russia and Britain ultimately resulted into 1st world war.

IV Paris peace treaty and 2nd world war

The huge war indemnity and humiliation of Germany in peace talk resulted into rise of nazism in Germany and its aggressive nationalism resulted into 2nd world war.

So throughout the modern history France remained the major enemy of Germany and its consequences were war and destruction.

had modified the idea
by the Karl Marx to to actual condition at Mao was the great supporter of the communist ideology and he established first communist party of China i.e. Kungchung fang. He followed the idea's of Marx but with some fundamental changes. According to Marx, communism will get establish after overthrow of capitalist class by the working class. Marx believed in the efficacy of working class to bring revolution and not that of peasant class.

However, in China, agriculture was dominant over the industries. Working class was absent in China. So Mao took the help of peasant class to overthrow the feudal class in the society. He also used a new method i.e., systematic military fight to overthrow feudal class.

Remarks

According to Mao, communist ideology not only confined to capitalist and proletarian class but it must be according to local condition. Communist people must work according ground realities to overthrow the exploitative regime.

His modified Marxism came to known as Maoism and it also inspired peasant of many countries to rose against the exploitative forces. For example, Maoist movement in Nepal, India are the expression of same.

In this way, Mao was successful in establishing communist regime in China by modifying Marxism to suit local condition.

Remarks

(6c) (8) The above statement was given in the context of struggle against apartheid policy of South Africa government.

Apartheid policy was introduced by the Prime Minister of South Africa Dr. Malan in year 1948. According to this policy, the government had carried out racial segregation. Black people had to live outside area, they had to carry passes and their political rights had been curtailed.

The South Africa was nation of black majority people, but it ruled by the white minority government. So in order to overthrow the racist rule, black people started mobilising masses. United mass action was carried out under the African National Congress, which was formed by Albert Luthuli in year 1912.

The 'Youth League' of Nelson Mandela was also active in mass agitations. This all-black organisation prepared the freedom charter in 1955 and it intensified the struggle against the racist rule. Under the pressure of this mass agitation and violent activities South African started taking steps from year 1979 by giving some concession e.g. Participation at local government.

However, pressure was mounting on the government, UN imposed sanction of south Africa, pressure of Commonwealth all resulted into overthrow of minority rule and establishment of Government of National Unity under Presedentship of Nelson Mandela in year 1994.

It is the united mass action and armed struggle of black people in South Africa helped to overthrow white minority racist rule.
