1. Answer the following questions: (150 Words Each) $(10 \times 5 = 50)$
- Mill's divergence from modern notion of democracy.
 - Multiculturalists' perspective on Human Rights.
 - Compare Marx and Aristotle on the nature of 'Revolution'.
 - Communitarian perspective of justice by Michael Walzer.
 - Notion of Counter-hegemony by Antonio Gramsci.

(C) J.S Mill is considered as the Champion of democracy. If Locke has given majoritarian model of democracy, Mill has given proportional representation model.

In his book "On Representative Government", Mill considers democracy as the second best form of government after direct democracy.

Mill was influenced by the Alexis de Tocqueville's work on democracy becoming tyranny of majority. Therefore, Mill gave prescriptions like weighted voting (more weightage to educated person's vote), voting rights in all constituencies.

Remarks

where people own property, open ballot etc.

These prescriptions were not in line with the modern model's of democracies. Today Universal adult franchise is the hallmark of democracy.

Also, nations were fighting to establish democracy e.g. USA's war on Iraq. In contradiction, Mill was reluctant to introduce democracy everywhere. According to Mill, Benevolent despotism is better for barbarians.

However, we have to admire Mill's advocacy for right to vote to women which is in sync with today's democratic principles.

(b)

Multiculturalism talks about the rights of minorities. Few multiculturalists favour the recognition of special rights of minorities especially by western societies.

Remarks

Bhikhu Parekh has provided the rationale about why the rights of minorities are important. He argues that social diversity is good for society just like ecological diversity is good for environment. We can not respect someone without respecting his culture.

Will Kymlicka in his book "Multicultural citizenship" has suggested to provide three rights i.e. right to self representation, polyethnic rights, right to self governance. However, he does not suggest to provide these rights to refugees & immigrants.

Bhikhu Parekh in his book "Rethinking multiculturalism" suggested harm principle for rights of refugees & immigrants. He also suggests a dialogue among civilizations to evolve some cosmopolitan values which can be a basis for multiculturalism e.g. Human dignity can be a value.

□marks

Final work on the elaboration how the multicultural or rights is an important moral perspective

Thus, multiculturalists main concern is rights for minorities. They are against ethnocentrism. Later on multiculturalism given rise to new schools like Value Pluralism, Communitarianism etc.

(C)

Aristotle is considered as the father of Political sociology. He had studied 158 constitutions of his time and analyzed the reasons for revolution.

Aristotle held that the main reason for revolution is feeling of inequality either real or apparent. He gives general causes like corruption, influx of foreigners etc. He has also given regime specific causes like In Oligarchy - greed of few rich, poor revolt
In Democracy - Conspiracy by rich against poor.

Remarks

Karl Marx has also given his views on revolution. However, his views are totally in opposition.

Marx believes that state is an instrument of Bourgeoisie or in the words of Marx "executive committee of Bourgeoisie".

Thus he wants worker to develop true consciousness and revolt against the state.

In essence Marx also believes that the source of revolution is inequality between the rich and poor or bourgeoisie & workers. However, the major difference between the two lies in the fact that if Aristotle prefers static quo, not revolution then Marx prefers revolution and rejects static quo.

Aristotle's idea have been more useful for societies as the major revolutions were the result of inequalities & reasons given by Aristotle.

Communitarian perspective of Justice is essentially a criticism of Rawls's idea of Justice. Communitarian perspective is given by Michael Sandel, Nichall Wolzer & Alasdair, McIntyre.

Michael Sandel has talked about Rawls's conception of self & society. According to Sandel, man is not atomistic, he is embedded self. Man is binded in a network of relations. He is "unencumbered self". Sandel also argues that self is not prior to good rather self is constituted in the good. We do not make our goals, we discover our goals.

Remarks

Michael Walzer has focused on the differences between cultures. According to Walzer, Justice is what people subscribe to. Different societies may have different conceptions of Justice. In his book, the spheres of Justice, he gives the example of Caste system in India. Caste system is still prevalent despite modern Constitution ~~for~~ because people subscribe to the idea.

According to Walzer, there cannot be a universal idea of Justice as prescribed by Rawls. In his words "different goods ought to be distributed differently".

communitarian perspective is desirable as wars in middle east are the result of imposition of liberal values.

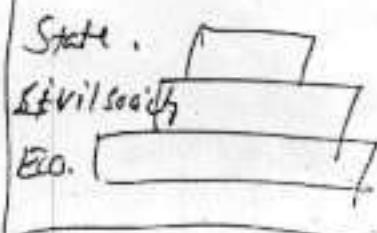

Remarks

(5) You need to elaborate on the idea of spheres of Justice
 ALSO mention how it is practically difficult to implement this idea.

Gramsci is the second most important scholar in Marxism after Marx. He analyzed Marx's ideas and emphasized on the role of superstructures.

According to Gramsci, Civil Society plays the role of manufacturing hegemony. He wants the workers to understand how bourgeoisie rule. Gramsci held that bourgeoisie rule by creating hegemony. Hegemony is actively lived by oppressed. It is the situation when oppressed starts enjoying his own exploitation.

Thus Gramsci suggests workers to establish counter hegemony. He wants workers to organize and make a coalition of subaltern classes.

He also suggested workers to have their own organic intellectuals. Thus workers have to make socialism a common cause before the revolution.

Condition movement is a perfect example of Gramsci's theory of counter hegemony.

(Q)

Karl Marx has called Hobbes as father of all of us. This recognition of Hobbes by one of the greatest philosophers shows the relevance of Hobbes. Hobbes theory of State has both the elements of Liberalism and absolutism.

Hobbes belonged the age when science was emerging and more emphasis was on purely scientific theories. Hobbes used deductive comparative method, inspired by Galileo, to show man is utilitarian, individualistic and materialistic.

Sabine has called Hobbes as the greatest of all individualists. Utilitarianism is a tradition started by Mill. He represented the emerging bourgeoisie class. Hobbes also gave the theory of state sovereignty which helped Capitalist class. These thoughts of Hobbes point towards Liberalism in Hobbes's works.

However, Macpherson argues that Hobbes starts as an individualist and ends as an absolutist. He creates state with unlimited powers. State is a Leviathan. Men has transferred all his rights, therefore state becomes absolute. Man has no body where law is free. He also gives power to punish, Covenants without swords are nothing but words.

Thus Hobbes represent both liberal and absolutist tradition. His advocacy for individual, right to life, right to revolution represent liberal tradition while his concepts of Leviathan, right to punish, rejection of Natural Rights represent absolutism.

Locke belonged to stable phase of history. Unlike Hobbes who witnessed Puritan revolution 1648, he saw glorious revolution where there was a smooth transfer of power. Therefore, Locke takes reasonable view of human nature.

Locke prefers limited state. He uses social contract theory that there were some inconveniences in State of Nature and therefore man has created state. Men has not transferred Right to Life, Liberty & Property.

Property is a gift of God to man.
For God has created apple, meat, milk to eat and to drink. God wants man to live a

According to Locke, once property was held in common, it doesn't mean that it always will be the same. Those were hardworking enterprising mode progress. Property is a result of men's labour. Labour is a part of personality. Men has absolute right over his labour, the labour of his slave & labour of his horse.

Industrial revolution is a transformation in the methods of production during 18th century due to emergence of new scientific discoveries & inventions like powerloom, Steam Engine, Cotton Gin.

Michael Sandel as a communitarian thinker. Communitarians like Michael Sandel, Michael Walzer criticize any idea which goes for universal application. For example - Rawls gave universal idea of Justice.

In his book "Liberism & the Theory of Justice", Michael Sandel criticized Rawls' conception of self & society.

According to Sandels, Man's conception as an atomistic individual or encumbered self is wrong. Real man lives in a society. He is rather encumbered self.

Remarks

Sandels believes that man is embedded in a network of relations in a society. He can not be extracted out of the society. Society is prior to an individual.

Rawls believed that self is prior to an end. It means self is prior to the goals of society. In response, Sandel argues that self is not prior to an end rather self is constituted through ends. It means goals of society are not different from goals of an individual. We do not make our goals after we discover our goals.

Remarks

Michael Sandel is noted of self from the core of communitarian perspective. It is because of Michael Sandel & Michael Walzer's criticism that Rawls changed his ideas and gave new conception in his book "Political Liberalism".

 (200 Words) (15 Marks)
- (b) Marxist conception of alienation is a humanitarian Crisis of modern Industrial society, Explain.
 (200 Words) (15 Marks)
- (c) Positive liberalism as a challenge to classical liberalism. Discuss.
 (250 Words) (20 Marks)

(a) Multiculturalism is an ideology which emphasize on special rights of minorities. Since the advent of globalisation, there is a greater movement of people across nations, also human Rights consciousness is increasing, therefore this demands that state should take culture more seriously.

~~state culture should be given so much emphasis~~
Will Kymlicka in his book "Multicultural citizenship" has prescribed three rights of minorities —

- ① Right to representation.
- ② Right to self governance
- ③ Poly ethnic rights.

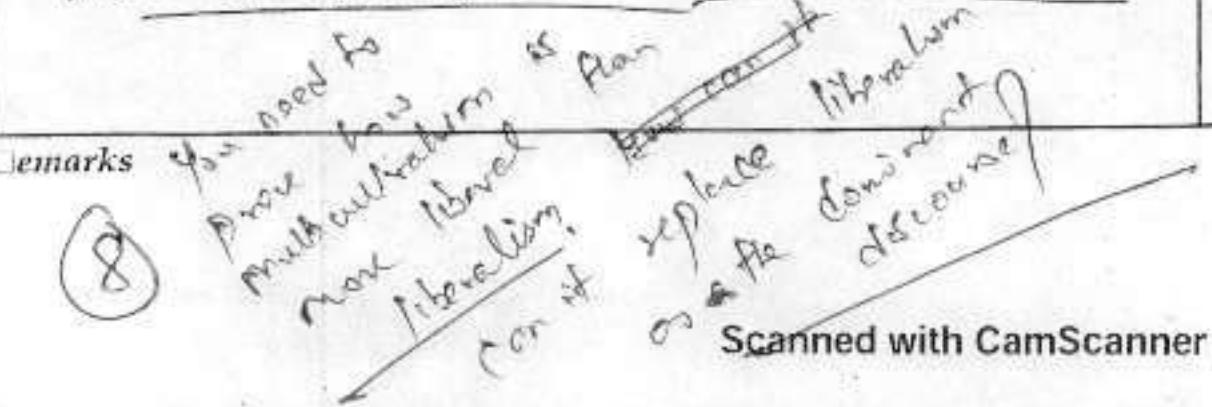

According to Will Kymlicka, there is no harm if state accepts these rights-

Remarks

However, he do not prescribe these rights to refugees & immigrants. Also, Wimlcke believes that multiculturalism can be practised only in liberal societies.

In the response to Will Kymlicka's view, that Bhikhu Parekh in his book "Rethinking Multiculturalism" suggests that it is wrong to think that only liberal societies can be multicultural. He gives the example of India which has been a tolerant society since ancient times. Thus liberals can not enjoy a monopoly over multiculturalism.

Therefore Bhikhu Parekh believe that Liberalism and Multiculturalism are antagonist. Multiculturalism is an alternative to liberalism. Liberals have to accept multiculturalism over civic nationalism.

Rather than liberalism, Indian society is more close to multiculturalism. Indian Constitution recognises the rights of minorities. Article 25 & Article 30 provides right to preserve distinct culture & language.

(b)

The idea of alienation is the work of Young Marx. He gave this idea in "The economical & philosophical manuscripts". The idea of alienation further led to the emergence of new school i.e. Frankfurt or Critical School.

According to Marx, the so called liberty in western societies or modern Industrial societies is actually alienation. Capitalism has destroyed the human essence. The two persons do not meet as human beings rather they meet as a consumer and a buyer. Capitalism and modern Industrial societies lead to the objectification of men.

Not only workers suffer from alienation but also capitalists. However, the pain of capitalists is less than workers.

Marx talks about freedom and happiness. According to him, freedom is acting ~~to~~ according to our true nature. Our true nature is that we are social creative.

Marx discusses alienation at four levels-

- ① Alienation from the process of production.
- ② Alienation from the product of labour.
- ③ No time to realize social nature.
- ④ Cumulative effect in that men become alienated to himself.

Remarks

~~should elaborate on the 4 types of alienation~~

Thus modern industrial society is leading to humanization crisis in which we are losing our true happiness. Therefore, Marx suggests communism as the only way to achieve freedom. Man can realize his true nature only in communism because in communism production is for need & not greed.

(1) ~~a should not be inclined to believe in the theory of merit & reward or punishment or alteration~~

(c) Classical liberalism emerged in the works of John Locke, Adam Smith, Thomas Jefferson.

Locke suggested limited State or a nightwatchman state. He established right to liberty, life and property as natural rights and state cannot limit these rights. According to Locke, Men can be free even if state is present because state's law has to confirm natural law. In his words, "No law, no liberty".

- Adam Smith gave his theory in his book "The Wealth of Nations". He held that there is an invisible hand in the market, therefore allow freedom to the market. Thomas Jefferson held that minimal state is the best state.

However, slowly Liberalism came under the garb of utilitarianism. It was criticized as inhumane. The challenges from socialism forced it to change.

Liberalism in transition can be seen in the works of J.S. Mill. He allowed state's intervention in others regarding action.

Remarks

Positive liberalism or modern liberalism emerged in 1940s. TH Green was a pioneer of positive liberalism. He held that "Human consciousness postulates liberty, & liberty involves rights & right demands state".

Therefore he allowed state's intervention or Welfare State. According

According to Green, liberty is the capacity of doing something which is worth doing. It involves internal impediments not only external as suggested by Hobbes.

Therefore, state's intervention is necessary. The role of state is to "linder the hindrances". Hindrances may be internal or external.

Laske also presented similar views. He held that state is a keystone of social architecture. He gave social and economic rights.

Modern liberalism dominated the scene till 70s, but later on welfare state also came under criticism because of crisis situation due to populist policies. It became criticized as "lazy state". This led to the emergence of neo-liberalism.

Mill in his book "On Subjection of women" argued that all forms of slavery is abolished except one i.e. woman slavery. It is not ~~natural~~ even it's universal.

Mill also wants people to understand the utility of upliftment of women. It Therefore, Mill suggests right to vote for women. Mill's ideal inspired later day women movements like suffragettes.

~~Social Locke~~

(b)

According to Harmer, Political science starts & ends with the state. Though a central concept in Political Science, State remains a contested subject.

In the works of Locke, we find a view of limited state. Unlike Hobbes, who takes pessimistic view of human nature,

Remarks

Locke takes reasonable view. In the words of Locke "Reason in men guides him not to harm others in life, liberty & possessions".

Locke's State of nature is a peaceful, state of "peace, goodwill & mutual assistance". However, due to some shortcomings man goes for social contract & creates state.

In Locke, man has only transformed his rights to adjudicate, legislate & execute. People still have right to life, liberty & property. These are inalienable rights.

Right to revolution is also provided by Locke in case, state deprives person of his property.

Thus notion of state remains limited.

d.) Post modernism emerged after world war II. The term was first used by Lyotard in his book "The post-modern Condition".

Post modernism is inspired by the ideas of Nietzsche, Einstein, Thomas Kuhn (Paradigm), Athelster etc. Nietzsche held that the God is dead and there is no way to determine the truth. He also talk about knowledge power connection.

Post modernism is different from modernism in the sense that it emphasizes on subjectivity, decentralisation, rejection of universality, foundationalism etc.

Lyotard held that all theories are meta-narratives. He describes post modernism as irreducibility towards meta-narratives.

We need to understand multiple narratives.

Remarks

Foucault gave the concept of discourses. According to him, theories are discourses, it is not discovering but manufacturing the truth.

Derrida gives the idea of deconstruction. It calls for re-reading the texts because it may have different meanings.

Thus postmodernism has truly changed the notion about looking at theories.

Washington Consensus are the principles given by John Williamson to be adopted by countries facing economic challenges to achieve stability and economic growth. It is also known as market fundamentalism.

Washington Consensus is based on the theory of neo-liberalism. Hayek, a neo liberal, considers market as a huge network of capitalised which can intercept millions of messages at a time.

The major prescriptions of Washington Consensus include freedom to market, freedom of navigation of high seas, reducing custom duties, reducing tariff & non-tariff barriers, allowing foreign investments etc.

Globalisation is also based on the theory of Washington Consensus. The anomalies in the theory of Washington Consensus are visible as now inequalities have increased due to its adoption. This has given rise to new theories.

Joseph Stiglitz calls for post-washington Consensus. Countries are opting welfare policies. Social liberals like Amartya Sen suggest capacity building. There is a setback to Washington consensus after Washington's America first and Brexit.

- (c) Sovereignty is an ultimate power of State on its subjects. State enjoys ultimate authority in its sphere of influence.

Stephen Krasner has provided his view on relationship between sovereignty & Globalisation. Sovereignty & Globalisation are contradictory ideas. If sovereignty is a territorial idea, then Globalisation is deterritorialisation.

There are three views on relationship between Sovereignty & Globalisation. Globolists like Stephen Krasner, Simon Strange, Statists like Robert Gilpin & Transformalists like David Held.

Remarks

Stephen Krasner argues that globalisation dilutes sovereignty in three ways. Statists like Robert Gilpin believe that state is in very much command of globalisation. David Held believes that it is not a zero sum game in some areas state A in some areas sovereignty is winning.

However, scholars like Sorensen believe that globalisation don't affect all in a similar way. Some states influence globalisation & other gets influenced by it.

Thus Sovereignty & globalisation's relationship remains a matter of debate. However, globalisation has led to the new concept in sovereignty like Responsibility to protect.

In social contract theories, scholars generally describe human nature, state of nature and outcome of social contract.

Hobbes and Locke's view on human nature are very opposite. If Hobbesian man is individualistic & passion dominates over Mao was the first person to implement Marx's ideas in Asia. The conditions of Asia at that time were very different from Europe. Therefore, Mao had to change the Marx's ideas to ensure effective implementation in China.

Mao & Marx, both supported violence as a means for communism. If Marx held "Violence is a midwife of change" then Mao held "Power flows through the barrel of gun". However, at that time China was a feudal society and industrialisation was not there. Therefore, Mao gave the concept of ~~the contradiction between workers and bourgeoisie is antagonistic~~

 According to Mao, peasants have antagonistic relationship with indigenous feudal lords and foreign bourgeoisie, and while with indigenous bourgeoisie they have non-antagonistic relationship.

Here the contradiction is between feudalism and peasants and not between workers and bourgeoisie. Maoism is against imperialism and feudalism and not capitalism.

Habermas has analyzed the state in welfare societies. He comes to the conclusion that the welfare state suffers from Legitimation crisis and hence it is not stable.

In welfare state, politicians make hefty promises to populace. With each election there are increasing expectations. However, the time comes when ~~state can~~ Capitalists cannot provide freebies. Thus State has to be rolled back.

This can be understood from the example of Greece. The state in Greece was providing huge social security benefits. This led to economic instability. Therefore state was rolled back and huge protests happened.
